Dr. Darlington to Speak in Waterbury.

Dr. Thomas Darlington of New York city, commissioner of police and health officer of the port of New York, will deliver an address to a Waterbury audience at an early date on some topic related to the public health. The fact was announced at a meeting held yesterday afternoon by the Waterbury Tuberculosis League in the aldermanic chamber in the city hall.

To Dr. Thomas J. Kilmartin, secretary of the league, who secured Dr. Darlington's consent to come to Waterbury, the people who hear him will be indebted. The New York man, who is one of the world's authorities on modern public health methods and a fine speaker, will give his services free, and Manager S. Z. Poll, whose generosity in matters of the kind is widely known, will be asked to contribute the use of his theater in behalf of the crusade against consumption. Admission to Dr. Darlington's lecture will be by tickets, which will be given out through agencies to be announced later.

Costume Whist and Dance.

The members of the Bijou Whist club were entertained at the Whist and Dance at the home of Mrs. L. J. Morin in Wood's hall Thursday evening. The members invited their gentlemen friends and the evening was the most enjoyable that the club has had this winter. The ladies wore old fashioned costumes and the range of styles covered a period of fifty years.

During the early part of the evening whist was played, after which a basket lunch was served. The remainder of the evening was given up to dancing.

On account of low water part of the mill of the Waterbury company in that village is being run during the day and part during the evening hours. The rain of Wednesday helped the rivers some, but a big shortage in the water supply still exists.

Somebody Had Venison.

Someone in this section has had venison lately. The hide of a deer has been found in the river near the Dyer dam where it was evidently cast to hide evidence of the violation of the law. There are several deer living in the vicinity of where the hide was found and it would not be difficult for anyone so inclined to shoot one of the animals.

Motorman's Watch Stolen.

Hosea Green, motorman on the Providence and Danielson line between Danielson and East Killingly on the evening run, has lost a gold watch and there is reason to believe that it was taken from his pocket.

Mr. Green was jostled by a man at East Killingly on a recent evening and shortly afterward he noticed that the watch was missing. He knows that he had the watch a very few minutes before he missed it and he also knows that he had not been away from his car, and yet the watch has disappeared.

Armory Stands Alone.

The armory now stands alone on the state property at Army square, the old buildings recently sold to the highest bidder having been removed. The work of grading the square has not commenced, but it is expected that it will be soon. The cellar holes are to be filled and after the improvements are completed there will be no evidence that the old building ever occupied a part of the property.

There were many visitors to the new central fire station on Thursday and all were pleased with the new quarters of the department. The building was a surprise to many and was frequently referred to as being worthy of a much larger town than Danielson.

Liquor in Jury Rooms. Entirely apart from the merits of the conviction of Charles W. Morse, the New York banker and "king" of the enterprises, the fact that liquor was habitually used in the jury room and elsewhere while his case was on trial, and by the men who were to decide it, is to be deplored. The amount consumed is not material. There shouldn't have been any "apple." If there is a single place where whiskey has no right to be it is the jury room. The deliberations of men who have in their hands the life or liberty of another ought never to be influenced in the least degree by alcohol. A defendant has the inherent right to the calm judgment of his jury, and that he can scarcely get through the admixture of intoxicants.

Here is a case where reform is perfectly simple. Jurors cannot get liquor unless it is brought to them.—Boston Post.

JONES VS. CONNECTICUT CO.

Arguments Not Finished at Thursday's Session of the Superior Court.

The case of Albert E. Jones vs. the Connecticut company occupied all of Thursday's session of the superior court, the taking of evidence being completed during the afternoon and the pleas made by Attorney Carpenter for the plaintiff and Attorney Berry for the defendant.

After Attorney Carpenter's plea, Attorney Berry sought to have the broken insulator which permitted the wire to drop down to be excluded as evidence of the company's negligence, claiming that the insulator broke because of a hidden defect and therefore the breaking could not be held against the company. Judge Robinson ruled that the broken insulator would go in as evidence and said that his charge to the jury would cover the point raised by Attorney Berry.

Attorney Berry had not completed his argument when court adjourned for the day, and will resume this morning.

After Attorney Carpenter's argument the case will go to the jury.

BLAMES COFFEE AND TEA.

New Haven Teachers Declare Them Menace to Pupils.

That the co-operation of the home is badly needed by local educators in school work and that coffee and tea drinking with late hours and smoking among schoolboys is causing considerable trouble in local schools was the surprising fact which came to light through the medium of Supervising Principals Sherman I. Graves of the Strong district, and Julius G. Knowlton of the Winchester district, says the New Haven Journal-Courier.

"All that will be done to overcome the trouble at present," said Mr. Knowlton, "will be to get the co-operation of the home. It will be heard to discourage the tea and coffee habits, but everything will be done."

"Tea and coffee drinking is serious in a child's life and prevents school children from studying or working well in the schools. The mental condition of the child is affected by the physical condition caused by coffee drinking. The condition of the pupil resulting from drinking coffee is noticeable in the schools, but the school has no power to prevent the trouble, although the habit is serious in the life and especially in the early life of the schoolboy or girl. Everything will be done to discourage the habit."

On being asked in regard to the matter, Supervising Principal Sherman I. Graves said that not only was the coffee and tea habit spreading, but smoking and late hours were the two great troubles which are being fought in the schools by local educators.

"Late hours," said Mr. Graves, "besides tea, coffee, and smoking, are the great enemy working against progress in the schools. Let the home correct these faults and the children will show a decided mental gain and an increased mental power."

"Children attending parties until 12 o'clock at night find it impossible to work in school and pupils will fail in the schools. This fault is remedied in the home."

These supervisors of two of the larger districts are determined to fight these evils to the best of their power, for they claim that the bad habits are spreading and seriously interfering with school work. That such a condition exists among the grammar school pupils of the city will prove a surprise to many.
